Best Practice I

"Words to Wisdom: Promoting Reading, Reflection, and Review"

Objectives of the Practice: To cultivate a strong reading culture, encourage critical thinking, and develop writing skills through regular book reviews and reading sessions.

The Context: In an age dominated by digital distractions, the institution faced the challenge of engaging students in reading. Many students lacked the habit of reading books beyond their textbooks, which hindered the development of their intellectual and analytical skills. The need to instill the habit of reading, coupled with promoting book reviews, became a priority.

The Practice: To address this challenge, one of the libraries initiated the Vachan Prerna Diwas (Reading Inspiration Day) and regular Book Reviewing Activities. These initiatives involved encouraging students to read books across various genres and submit book reviews. The library also organized book donation drives, book discussion sessions, and essay competitions on books read by students. The practice emphasized peer learning through group discussions on book themes, fostering critical analysis and knowledge exchange. Students who submitted reviews regularly were rewarded, encouraging a deeper engagement with reading. The introduction of Reading Competitions further sparked interest and provided a platform for students to showcase their insights on literature.

Evidence of Success: The Vachan Prerna Diwas held in October 2023 had 28 participants who showed a significant improvement in their reading frequency. The book reviewing activities led to a noticeable increase in the number of reviews submitted, with students expressing a stronger affinity for reading and critical thinking. The initiative also sparked more participation in future reading-related events.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required: While the initiative saw good engagement, a few challenges included students' reluctance to commit to reading and the need for more diverse book collections. To address this, additional resources like guest lectures from authors, more engaging reading materials, and a dedicated budget for reading promotions were required.

Best Practice II

"Ensuring Health Security: Combating Mosquitoes and Protecting Hygiene"

Objectives of the Practice: To educate students and the community about the health risks associated with mosquitoes and the preventive measures to avoid mosquito-borne diseases.

The Context: Mosquito-borne diseases, such as malaria, dengue, and chikungunya, remain significant health concerns in many parts of India. The need to educate students and local communities about preventing these diseases was a pressing issue. The initiative aimed to spread awareness about mosquito life cycles, diseases, and control measures.

The Practice: On World Mosquito Day, the institution, in collaboration with Ajuman Islam Primary School and Anganwadi School, organized an awareness campaign titled "Safeguard Yourself from Mosquito Bites". The event focused on educating students about the life cycle of mosquitoes, the diseases they spread, and effective preventive measures. Interactive sessions were conducted with practical demonstrations on eliminating mosquito breeding sites, using mosquito nets, and maintaining personal hygiene. The event's uniqueness lies in its integration of both school and community efforts to promote health awareness, particularly in rural and semi-urban settings.

Evidence of Success: The activity, held on 23rd and 24th August 2024, reached 150+ beneficiaries, including school students and community members. Post-event surveys indicated increased awareness of mosquito-borne diseases and preventive practices, with students actively discussing these topics with family members.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required: One challenge was ensuring active participation from the community. Resources needed included educational materials, trained facilitators, and outreach support from local health departments.

Notes (Optional): This practice can be adopted by other institutions to address public health challenges in their communities, focusing on preventive health education, student involvement, and community collaboration. The model fosters awareness in rural areas where health education resources are often limited.
